2018 Dallas Art Fair. DANIEL DRIENSKY

The Dallas Art Fair, which will be held from April 11 to 14 at the Fashion Industry Gallery in the Dallas Arts District, has revealed the exhibitors participating in its 11th edition—nearly 100 in total, from 30 cities across North America, South America, Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.

First-time exhibitors at the Dallas Art Fair include Sadie Coles HQ (London), Lisson Gallery (London and New York), and Blain|Southern (London and Berlin).

The fair has also announced that it will open a permanent project space in Dallas's Design District, where it will stage year-round exhibitions and programming from its exhibitors and partners.

John Sughrue, chairman of the Dallas Art Fair, said in a statement, "This year, we feel the fair's impact on Dallas more than ever. Our new project space will open even more doors for our partners and exhibitors, and is a testament to our commitment to providing high-quality cultural programming for the city even when the fair is over."
